An Old-time Rat Baiting.

A genuine old-time rat baiting took place

Wednesday afternoon in the rear of a well known sporting resort not five blocks from the City Hall, New York. The old-time round pit was dispensed with. A small room, eight feet square, was stripped of fur-niture and used instead of a pit. On two sides of the little room are large, square glass windows. The door is also of glass. The speciators stood on the outside of the room and watched the fun through the glass windows and door. At precisely 2:05 o'clock the master of caremonies approached with a the master of ceremonies approached with a large, square wooden box. One of the windows was opened, the box was thrust through it and at the same time the lid was pulled up. Fifty round, fat rodents leaped into the room. They went ecampering away in every direction, thinking they were at liberty. After making several circuits of the room they finally nestled in groups in the four corners. Five minutes after the rats had been dumped into the room the owner of the dog came in with a room the owner of the dog came in with a knock-kneed, long-bodied and diminutivelegged black-and-tan dachshund, which he claimed, notwithstanding his ungainly proportions, "cud eat de hul" of dem in tirteen minutes 'n not ha'f try." The crowd of spectators was considerably disappointed in the appearance of the dog. They expected to see a clean cut, sprightly little Scotch terrier. They gave evidences of their disgust in pretty round terms. Thir-teen minutes was the time in which "Peter," the dog, was to kill the rats. The window was again raised and Peter caught sight of a huge rat as it ran across the room. He became almost uncontrollable. His long flap ears assumed a rampant appearance his eyes shown like beads and his body red with intense exercises of the ropest him into the room. The characteristic construction of the rotents which were buddled gether in one corner. Such a scampering of a squealing. Rat after rat was selzed by sections in the peter and too tossed into the air, only to come down dead. The little come was a perfect pand monitum. Not a sound issued from little Peter as he waddled with might and main up and down and around the room. In five minutes the bodies of twenty-five dead rats and two wounded ones bestrewed the floor. As Peter made a dash at a cornered rat the latter jumped as foot from the floor and grabbed. Peter by the side of the head with his mouth, and held on like grim death. He was shaked held the properties of the part of the part of the square between Prince and Duke streets, beginning on the west side of Alfred street, between Duke and Prince streets, beginning on the west side of Alfred street at the distance of 45 feet south of the middle of the square between Prince and Duke streets, beginning on the west side of Alfred street to Alfred street; between Duke and Prince streets, beginning on the west side of Alfred street in the streets, beginning on the west side of the head with his mouth, and held on like grim death. He was shaked the prince of the square between Prince and Duke streets, beginning on the west side of the head with parallel to Alfred street; between Duke and Prince streets, beginning on the west side of Alfred street, between Prince and Duke streets, beginning on the west side of the head of the square between Prince and Duke streets, beginning, with the use of said court and Duke streets, beginning on the west side of the prince streets, beginning on the west side of the prince streets, beginning on the west side of the prince streets, beginning on the west side of the prince streets, beginning, with the use of the square between Prince and Duke streets, beginning on the west side of the prince streets, beginning on the west side of the prince streets and prince streets, begin quivered with intense excitement. His owner dropped him into the room. At 2:10 o'clock he literally bounded on to the Many were the compliments heaped upon the little dog. "Bully boy!" they shouted. "Shakim up." "Hooray, that'eit." "Great Scott! how does he do it," and amid clapping of hands and cheers the spunky little dachshund went on with his war on the Two more big fellows were cornered and showed fight. They sprang at Peter and hung to his sides with their teeth like Unmindful of them, the little dog jumped into a nest of rate, tossing them in the air as fast as he could catch them in his mouth. The two rats which clung to his side were shaken off and dispatched in short order. The last one was tossed in the air at precisely twenty-one minutes and twenty seconds past 2 o'clock, making the time in killing the fifty rats 11 minutes and 20 seconds. After the last one was killed the little deg waddled over the battle ground to see that life was extinct in every body. He was then taken out. Blood was streaming from his mouth, but it was from the rats. He received several bites on his sides and head, which were bleeding. They were doctored, and he appeared to be anxious to
